

Research Professional News

Trusted Intelligence for Making Better Decisions

Staying ahead of news and policy announcements can be a challenge. Research Professional News, an award-winning, editorially independent news service, takes on the task to ensure you stay ahead of it all by providing exclusive, timely, and trusted information focused on research policy, research funding and higher education around the world.

Our news provides invaluable insight, delivered through flexible technology, to everyone in your institution. That means sharper awareness of the policy and funding environment in which you are operating, putting you in a position to make better decisions for your entire institution about where to invest, what funding to aim for, who to hire, and what to do next. With a global editorial team of specialist journalists, we take an objective, independent view of events, bringing you insights informed by a deep network of policy contacts around the world and cutting through the gloss of press releases.

Hundreds of leading universities around the world have discovered Research Professional News is a vital ingredient in building success in the research field.

Research Professional News Essentials

Extensive Coverage

Topics covered include government policy, funding agencies, publishing, regulation, and research culture.

Global Reach

International news, insight and intelligence spanning Europe, the United Kingdom, Africa, Australia, New Zealand, and the United States.

Local Knowledge

Specialist journalists based around the world, who seek out and explain the most important developments in their region for both local and international audiences.

Customisable

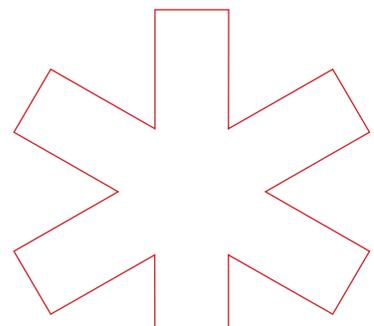

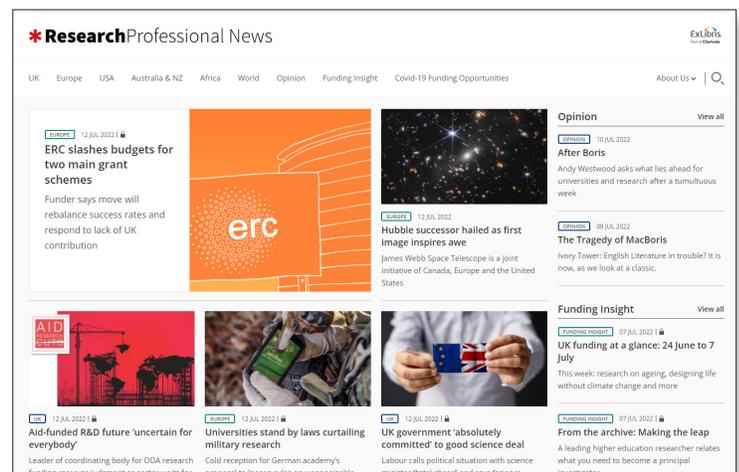

With a range of daily and weekly bulletins, digital magazines, and the option of fully personalised email alerts, it's easy to tailor our news to your needs.

Timesaving

Delivers information that suits your needs, saving you the time and effort involved in filtering out irrelevant content.

Advertising

Advertising service that enables you to get your opportunities and vacancies direct to the right people.

Helping researchers create life-changing innovations

We at Research Professional News believe you should have instant access to the right information at the right time and be alerted to the funding opportunities and policy developments that matter to you the most. To help you advance life-changing innovations, we connect the dots for you with a personalised news service that reports on new directions in research funding from governments to research councils, international funders, and more. Research Professional News is a fundamental tool that provides insight critical to the services offered by many of the world's leading research institutions.

Supporting your research journey and helping you create impact

- Daily/Weekly News Email – be the first to read stories focusing on government research policy changes, funder strategies and emerging sector trends.
- Funding Insight – benefit from interviews with local and international funders about upcoming calls, past grant winners and know-how articles – giving you unrivalled insight into what makes the difference to a winning bid.
- Global Content – enjoy full access to our global news coverage, giving your research office and researchers insight into issues affecting international research partnerships, funding, publishing trends, and potential collaborators.
- Digital Magazines - Additionally, Research Professional News offers a range of digital magazines and premium publications to keep up-to-date with exclusive insights on the people and institutions involved in funding and policy decisions.

- Research Fortnight – the only UK publication that connects research to funding and policymaking
- Research Europe – a digital magazine covering the most important developments in research policy and higher education across Europe
- Research Africa – weekly, in-depth content from our correspondents in Africa
- 8am Playbook UK – a daily early-morning email briefing sent to higher education and research policy leaders in the UK.
- US Weekly Research Policy Playbook – an analysis of the biggest topics in US research policy, plus a digest of news from mainstream US media and diary for the week ahead.

Learn more about Research Professional News digital publications.

Accelerate the research process with Pivot-RP

Competition for research funding continues to rise, globally. Yet research offices and research administrators are being pressed to do more for their researchers with fewer resources.

Researchers and research administrators need a platform that identifies new funding opportunities and potential collaborators while offering insights and short-cuts to help research organisations win a larger share of available funding.

Combining a Research Professional News subscription with Pivot-RP, the most comprehensive global source of funding opportunities, helps research organisations to better inform their funding strategies in an effort to win a larger share of available funding.

With Research Professional News: Stay informed, save time from sifting multiple sources and enhance your institution's decision-making process

To learn more and preview this US content, visit www.researchprofessionalnews.com.

For more information - Contact Us.

