

Content Operations

Dear community members,

I am pleased to share the October 2023 newsletter with you, with updates on events and content news.

Events

I would like to thank over 200 participants who joined the Q4 content webinar:

Metadata at its Origin – Publishers Talk about Metadata

The links to the recording and presentation can be found here.

You may also refer to the Scholarly Kitchen article that was referenced during the presentation – Building Pipes and Fixing Leaks.

Feel free to review the Ex Libris page for content providers which details the specifics of the metadata types for delivery and discovery products (to answer some of the questions raised during the webinar).

Some providers have already sent us their 2024 collections list – please keep an eye on the Annual collections page for Alma, 360KB, and SFX.

I would also like to thank all attendees and speakers in the September IGeLU conference. It was wonderful to meet so many active members of the community, and the personal discussions were invaluable. I would also like to express my gratitude to the members of the IGeLU conference committee. Your dedication and diligent planning were instrumental in organizing such a massive event. Thank you all for your incredible work and efforts!

Content updates

The PZ Phaseout will be rolling out soon, but there is still no definite timeline. A clear communication will be issued in the next few weeks, I appreciate your patience, and will follow up once I have the details.

Please refer to the Alma, SFX and 360KB Content Roadmap section to stay updated with what we have achieved, in the passing 3 months, and what is yet to come until the end of 2024.

Another big project done with the Content Working Group is updating content related Salesforce Categories – please refer to the Knowledge Article to learn more.

Get to know Content Operations -

Pleased to introduce Olga - Olga is an MLIS for 25 years, and working at Ex Libris for 24 of them. A seasoned Provider Relations specialist, Olga is the focal point for major global content providers such as Cambridge, Oxford, Taylor and Francis and Wiley.

Working with content providers puts Olga and her team at the front of all that is new and happening in the Academic Publishing world, and her expertise and passion triggers processes in Ex Libris to correspond with content providers needs and goals. As a cat owner for many years, Olga stays agile, and always lands on her feet!

If you have any comments or feedback on this newsletter, please feel free to reach out to me directly.

Best,
Tamar

Tamar Ganor

Content Product Manager

Tel: +972-2-6499268

tamar.ganor@clarivate.com

EXLIBRIS Part of Clarivate

www.exlibrisgroup.com

Please consider the environment before printing

