ERM Linking

A discovery system uses three methods for providing online access:

- Direct (Canonical) Linking
- OpenURL Link Resolution Using a Knowledge Base
- Linking from MARC Records

In an ideal system, all of these are managed within a single system and interface

Direct Linking

Primo direct linking is managed within Primo Central

The screenshot displays the Primo Central interface for the University of Washington. At the top, the university logo and name are visible, along with user status (Guest) and navigation links for e-Shelf, Your Library Account, and Sign in. Below this, there are navigation tabs for Library Resources and Course Reserves. A search bar contains the query "A blind HI survey in the Ursa Major region" and a dropdown menu is set to "Articles, Books, and More". A search button and a "Chat with a librarian" button are also present.

The search results show a single entry for "A blind HI survey in the Ursa Major region" by Wolfinger, K.; Kilborn, V. A.; Koribalski, B. S.; Minchin, R. F.; Boyce, P. J.; Disney, M. J.; Lang, R. H.; Jordan, C. A. A green dot indicates that online access is available. The interface includes tabs for "Access online" and "Item details", and a "Send to" button.

The article preview section features the Cornell University Library logo and a red banner with the arXiv link "arXiv.org > astro-ph > arXiv:1210.2727". Below this, the article title "Astrophysics > Cosmology and Extragalactic Astrophysics" and "A blind HI survey in the Ursa Major region" are displayed, along with the authors' names and the submission date (Submitted on 9 Oct 2012). The abstract text reads: "We have conducted the first blind HI survey covering 480 deg² and a heliocentric velocity range from 300-1900 km/s to investigate the HI content of the nearby spiral-rich Ursa Major region and to look for previously uncatalogued gas-rich objects. Here we present the catalog of HI sources. The HI data were obtained with the 4-beam receiver mounted on the 76.2-m Lovell telescope (FWHM 12 arcmin) at the Jodrell Bank Observatory (UK) as part of the HI Jodrell All Sky Survey (HIJASS). We use the automated source finder DUCHAMP and identify 166 HI sources in the data cubes with HI masses in the range of 10⁷ - 10^{10.5} M_{sun}. Our Ursa Major HI catalogue includes 10 first time detections in the 21-cm emission line."

On the right side, there is a "Download:" section with links for "PDF" and "Other formats". Below that, the "Current browse context:" is shown as "astro-ph.CO" with navigation links for "prev", "next", "new", "recent", and "1210". A "Change to browse by:" section offers "astro-ph". At the bottom right, there is a "References & Citations" section.

At the bottom of the page, a "Back to results list" link is on the left, and "Result 1 Next" is on the right. A secondary search result is partially visible at the bottom, titled "The void galaxy survey: optical properties and h i morphology and kinematics" by Kreckel, K.; Platen, E.; Aragón-calvo, M. A.; Van Gorkom, J. H.; Van De Weygaert, R.; Van Der Hulst, J. M.; Beygu, B. The abstract for this second result reads: "The Astronomical Journal, 2012, Vol.144(1), p.16 (24pp) [Peer Reviewed Journal], the wide bandwidth of the WSRT observations in our survey also serves as a blind search in HI for galaxies throughout the voids." It also includes a "Check for online access" button and links for "Access online", "Item details", and "Times Cited".

Challenges

- Best practices for and coordination of technical services operations
- Vendor integrations
- Training
- Complexity
- Tight schedule
- Creating policy before all cohorts are up and running

Post-Migration Wins

- Merging of silos
- Opportunities for varying levels of automation
- Further blending of acquisitions & cataloging
- Greater collaboration among Alliance members
- Obtaining e-book resources is much faster
- Batch record loads “just happen” once configured correctly

Strategic Opportunities for the Alliance

When all four cohorts live:

- Collaborative technical services
- No more hardware purchases/maintenance
- Streamlined operations across the alliance as a whole
- Much easier to manage consortial collection development and purchasing
